

GardenersGuild – Rio Grande Community Farm – Harwood Art Center present

Urban Grower's Workshop Series

Join Jon Ashe and Dan Schuster from Rio Grande Community Farm for a workshop on when and how to start you indoor and outdoor seedlings as well as when and how to transplant your plant starts! First time gardeners and seasoned growers are welcome. Come learn, share and grow your knowledge!

SEEDLINGS & TRANSPLANTING!

Saturday March 26th – 10am

@ Rio Grande Community Farm's Big Red Barn

Please Join Us!

Admission is free to members of GardenersGuild, Harwood Art Center and Rio Grande Community Farm.

Suggested Donation is $5
(kids are free)

Find us @ 1701 Montano NW
(park in the dirt lot and walk east to the big red barn)

Jon Ashe and Dan Schuster collaborate as farm manager and head farmer at Rio Grande Community Farm; a 50 acre, non-profit urban farm located at the Los Poblanos Fields Open Space in the North Valley of Albuquerque, New Mexico. Rio Grande Community Farm grows healthy, certified organic food for the Albuquerque area, including Albuquerque Public Schools, offers community gardening opportunities, supports local food networks, and maintains wildlife habitat. Come learn their secrets to successful seed starting and transplanting, and begin your quest for a happy harvest!

RSVP or Questions to: